While the print is indeed larger than the standard Siddur, it works best most likely for a congregation prayer leader. The 'font' is large but not large enough for those with vision impairment and the siddur itself is very heavy for an elderly senior to hold.

I'm giving this 4 stars only because it IS heavy. But that is why Hashem invented shtenders :) It might be a tad lighter if it were just a siddur and not a machzor and that might be a good idea, Artscroll. One we use every week, the other 5 times a year. However, I disagree with Reb Rockoff as the fonts are large enough for me. My near vision is getting worse as I near my 7th decade, but not nearly so bad that I can't see this. I think for general reading, it is just fine. I can lay it on the table and still read it just fine while standing. I own several of these (for home, shul) and I recommend them. Especially if you have a good back.

Great can't wait to begin using with our traditional celebrations and prayer days! So much to learn about this part of my heritage and I am very pleased!

Was a Christmas gift, they loved it.
