The Suffering Stranger: Hermeneutics For Everyday Clinical Practice

Synopsis

Winner of the 2012 Gradiva Award! Utilizing the hermeneutics of Hans-Georg Gadamer and the ethics of Emmanuel Lévinas, The Suffering Stranger invigorates the conversation between psychoanalysis and philosophy, demonstrating how each is informed by the other and how both are strengthened in unison. Orange turns her critical (and clinical) eye toward five major psychoanalytic thinkers – Sándor Ferenczi, Frieda Fromm-Reichmann, D. W. Winnicott, Heinz Kohut, and Bernard Brandchaft – investigating the hermeneutic approach of each and engaging these innovative thinkers precisely as interpreters, as those who have seen the face and heard the voice of the other in an ethical manner. In doing so, she provides the practicing clinician with insight into the methodology of interpretation that underpins the day-to-day activity of analysis, and broadens the scope of possibility for philosophical extensions of psychoanalytic theory.

Customer Reviews

From an inquiry based on suspicion to one based on trust, a scholarly and warm read about this shift in psychoanalysis and the pioneers responsible who challenged principles of Freudian Theory.

The book is laid out in such a way the reading is rendered easy. The subject matter is interesting. The prose style is accessible to general public.

Donna Orange develops this complex topic with great simplicity. it is a helpful reading for humanistic clinicians from different approaches.

Every clinician would benefit from Donna Orange's instruction on how to bring classical hermeneutics-the art of interpretation-to bear on their efforts to grasp the psychological being of another human being. Not always easy reading, but the effort will pay dividends for all the years of one's practice and the patients will feel and be helped by studying this work.
